The small village of 'Tenesar' lies on the north coast of the island. Known as the lost village, which is not often mentioned. During the volcanic eruptions it survived, but was completely cut off. In recent years following the destruction it has become accessible and some of the houses are now inhabited. The silence is noticeable and the settlement is a flashback to a time before the island introduced tourism. It feels like a journey back in time: a wild and barren section at the back of Timanfaya National Park. From the air you will experience the story of life.

Meeting point:

We meet directly in front of the village entrance and walk from there about 10 minutes to the starting place.

We need very good weather conditions in order to fly from the steep coast "Caleta de Famar" over to "La Graciosa". Since we will fly over the open sea, winds must provide the proper altitude. If granted, we will have the adventure par excellence! After landing we take the ferry back to Orzola (Lanzarote).
